Australia's first eight-hour Battery Energy Storage System

It has been a busy month on the Limondale BESS site, with works progressing at pace on finalising conduit installs, earth grids, road access and foundations!

There are several crews on site, and the team has made it a priority to ensure the safety of all personnel. Clearly designated pedestrian, work and exclusion zones and continued shade and hydration breaks throughout the day have helped maintain safety for all on site.

Mid-February saw the first of the battery containers land on the site, with a succession of containers following throughout the remainder of the month. Limondale BESS is now really starting to take shape and look like an eight-hour battery!
